Producer: Axel Pauly cultivates his wines on approx. 9 hectares of vineyards, some of which have a gradient of up to 70%! The cultivated areas all face south or southwest and consist exclusively of different layers of slate rock. The winegrower focuses on naturalness, straightforwardness and the typical taste patterns of Moselle soils when developing his wines. Axel's wines are characterized by clarity, a crystalline characteristic, length and a great minerality.

Soil & Climate: Grey and blue slate, cool moderate climate.

Vintage: After the third year in a row of prolonged drought, the amount of rain in 2020 was the main factor in determining whether a wine estate at the Moselle could be counted among the winners or losers. Especially after the exceptionally weak previous year of 2019, the harvest volume this year was ten percent above the long-term average with an estimated 813,000 hectolitres. And one good thing came out of the dry period: Moselle winegrowers had few problems with diseases in the vineyards and were able to harvest perfectly healthy grapes with moderate acidity. For 2020, very Mosel-typical wines with intense aromas and a fruity character are to be expected.

Vinification: Hand-picked grapes, maceration for 10 hours, spontaneous fermentation in stainless steel with natural yeast, maturation in 100% stainless steel.
